Date: Thursday 9th February 2017

Time: 9am – 3.45pm

Location: Ruthin Craft Centre

Cost: FREE, Limited spaces available (12 Max), please book in advance to avoid disappointment.

Light lunch and refreshments included on the day

* The Arts and Education Network, North Wales - EDAU, will cover the cost of releasing a teacher from school, enabling the school to cover the costs of a supply teacher

This CPD training is designed for Art and Design Secondary Teachers interested in extending a current specialism or interest in Art, Craft, and Design in education, participants will be able to apply their learning in, and through, their professional practice.

The CPD day will offer teachers creative tools and support to develop their own learning practices. An opportunity to work directly with artists/makers and other art educators to look at new ways of engaging with artwork, introduce new creative ideas to extend classroom practice, resources and the opportunity to network and share expertise with other teachers.

There are 3 elements to the training day

- Resources - How to make the most of the Ruthin Craft Centre gallery exhibitions and its resources as an alternative learning tool of inspiration and critical research for pupils at school.

- Practical workshop - An opportunity to explore, experiment and develop practical skills and techniques through making.

(A hands-on workshop led by Dr Nigel Hurlstone, Senior Lecture at Manchester School of Art to explore alternative ways of drawing which can be adapted to all age groups.)

- Reflection – an opportunity to network and share good practice with other teachers
