'The Great Gingerbread Gallop' - a truly taste-bud tickling day!

What a truly taste-bud tickling day! Sixteen Denbighshire Schools were visited in a whirlwind county tour by one of David Walliams' favourite book characters, as part of this year's Enrichfest 2018 project, celebrating 10 years of the UK's No. 1 best-selling children's author, David Walliams.

Mrs Trafe (aka actor Stuart Loughland), a character from 'Billionaire Boy', described by Walliams as "an abominable school cook, often serving up monstrous concoctions", whose "standards of hygiene are sorely lacking", delighted the children by revealing some dishes that will be served up in Denbighshire's school canteens throughout June 2018, including 'Road-Kill Bake', 'Deep Fried Cardboard' and 'Slice of Sweat Cake', before distributing gingerbread biscuits (girls and boys).

Denbighshire's Curriculum Enrichment initiative has organised an exciting schools' competition throughout June 2018, entitled 'David's Dunkin' Delights' - "Ginger up your biscuit and make it Beautiful", where 1,460 pupils aged 5-7, can explore and develop purposeful and practical skills and delight in decorating their gingerbread biscuits, dressed in whatever they want their characters to wear - maybe even inspired by one of their favourite Walliams' characters.

The competition is being sponsored and judged by The Pudding Compartment Ltd, Flint, assisted by 'The Walliams Gang', the creative team behind this year's project.

AN ASSURANCE FROM DENBIGHSHIRE SCHOOL MEALS SERVICE: Mrs Trafe had no hand in baking these gingerbread biscuits!
